

The Labor Code of Georgia is the primary law regulating employment relations, covering issues like labor agreements, working hours, vacation, anti-discrimination, and workplace harassment. It establishes the rights and obligations of both employers and employees, prohibiting discrimination based on various factors, and addresses the employment of minors. The law also aims to create a fair and safe working environment for all workers in Georgia.

Document is available only in Georgian language.